THE DRIVER HAD A MATCH.

And the Passenger Had a Cigar, In Fact Several of Them.

A prosperous looking business man boarded the front platform of a cross-town car, and drawing a well-filled cigar case from his pocket selected a choice looking Havana. The driver "sized up" the man and the cigar case, and his mouth began to water. The smoker, after biting off the end of his cigar, began fumbling for a match. Failing to find one, he turned to the driver and asked him if he had a match.

"Yes, sir," responded the driver, with alacrity. "Here you are, sir."

"Thank you," said the business man, lighting his cigar and sending the fragrant smoke wafting across the driver's face.

"Very convenient to have matches around, sir. I fallers makes a point of carrying 'em."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; so many gentlemen pull out a cigar, and then find they ain't got a match."

Puff, puff and silence.

"I am quite a smoker myself. 'Course I can't smoke on the car, but then I enjoy it all the more when I get off."

"I suppose so," said the smoker absently.

"Many gentlemen makes a point of giving me a cigar, especially when they rides reg'lar. I ain't had my after dinner smoke yet."

"Oh," said the business man in a preoccupied manner.

"Yes, sir; I allers carry matches, as I said before, 'cause when a gentleman has a cigar and no light he allers seems so thankful for it. Generally gives me a cigar too. Seems kinder fair to exchange a cigar for a match, 'cause the weed ain't no good without a light."

"Ah," said the smoker, evidently busy in his mind with something connected with business.

The driver looked despairingly at him and after clearing his throat said:

"You don't happen to have another cigar in your pocket, do you, sir?"

"Certainly I have—two or three," said the business man testily. "But what has that to do with what you have been talking about?"

The rest of the journey was made in silence.—New York Tribune.

SONG BIRDS.

Something About the Feathered Warblers of Different Countries.

India has the jooze bulbuls, often called nightingales from their remarkably sweet voices. The Hindoos train them to sit on their hands and be carried about the bazaar. The black faced thrush is a very fine songster and can imitate almost everything he hears.

The white eyebrowed or speckled laughing thrush has a loud, powerful song and some melodious notes. He is sometimes called the greater Peking nightingale or Japanese mocking bird.

The Japanese robin is a pretty bird to look at, and very lively in his motions, but is overrated as a singer, his notes resembling a flute. He can be taught to speak and imitate many birds as well.

From Africa are shipped large numbers of little birds to this country called African singing finches. The plumage is handsome and often very odd. They lack voice, only one, the strawberry finch, having a song of any power. They are cunning, however, and pretty to have in an aviary. A gentleman in New York has an aviary cage containing some 35 varieties of small birds, and among them many African finches. As one of the canaries sings a small finch will fly to his side, and placing his head against the singer's breast listen closely until the canary drives him away.

A weaver bird with a thick red bill, in this same happy family, will take all the threads given him and weave a close network down the side of the cage and out on the perches. His owner says that if he would give him enough material the bird would weave until he shut out the daylight.—Philadelphia Times.

Wonders of Minute Animal Life.

The following, which might very appropriately bear the heading of "A Wonder of Wonders," is from the pen of Sir Robert S. Ball, F. R. S., astronomer royal of Ireland: "The microscope teaches us that there are animals so wonderfully minute that if a thousand of them were ranked abreast they could easily swim, without being thrown out of order, through the eye of the finest cambric needle ever made. Yet each of the minute creatures is a highly organized number of particles, capable of moving about, of finding and devouring food and of behaving in all respects as becomes an animal as distinguished from a fragment of unorganized matter."

The human mind is utterly incapable of realizing the structure of these little creatures and of fully appreciating their marvelous adaptation to the life they are destined to lead.

Both Died in Jerusalem.

Monk Gerbert, who ascended the papal throne under the title of Sylvester II, anticipating Roger Bacon, made a bronze head, which, like that owned by the reputed inventor of gunpowder, was capable of answering him like an oracle.

From this head he learned that he would not die until he performed mass at Jerusalem, and so he determined to live forever, by taking especial care not to go to the Holy City. Unfortunately Gerbert soon found that brazen heads, like other juggling fiends, "but keep the word of promise to our ear and break it to our hope," for one day he was taken seriously ill just after he had celebrated mass in one of the churches at Rome. On inquiring the name of this particular church he heard, much to his dismay, that it was popularly known as "Jerusalem," and he died in great agony a few hours afterward. Five hundred years after this Master Robert Fabian gives us the story of the death of King Henry IV, and tells us how that, in his youth it had been prophesied that he would die in Jerusalem, and that the prophecy, as in the case of Gerbert, was in a way fulfilled by the king dying in the Jerusalem chamber at Westminster.—London Standard.

The Foundation Stone of Success.

"The one great rule of business is that of honesty, absolute and unqualified honesty," writes Edward W. Bok in The Ladies' Home Journal. All the rules of business are worthless if they are not founded on that one and only foundation stone to true commercial success. Honesty is not alone the best policy in business. It is the one and only policy. Upon it, and upon it alone, can a good reputation be built, and a man in business without a reputation for honesty might just as well stop. Any deviation from the rule of honesty in business may bring temporary gain, but it invariably means permanent loss. On the other hand, a strict adherence to an honest policy may mean a temporary loss, but it is sure to result in a permanent gain.

"RUN-DOWN,"

"tired out" woman who complains of backache, headache, loss of appetite, exhaustion, nervousness, etc., is suffering from "Female Weakness," or derangement of the special functions of womanhood. Very often womb troubles set the nerves wild with affliction and as a result the woman suffers from sleeplessness, nervousness, nervous prostration, faintness and dizziness, irritability and indigestion. In all cases of irregularity or suspended monthly function and in all those nervous diseases depending upon local causes, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will restore you to perfect health. Instead of the exhaustion and feeling of weight and dragging down in the abdomen, you feel fresh and strong. For young girls who suffer from irregularities, for the hard-working woman who suffers from catarrhal inflammation of the lining membranes causing a constant drain upon the system, there is no prescription used by any physician which can equal in results Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., has used his "Favorite Prescription" in the diseases of women which had long been his specialty and in fully ninety-eight per cent. of all cases, it has permanently cured.

Mrs. JOHN M. CONKLIN, of Fullerton, Cal., writes: "I am enjoying perfect health and have been since I took the last bottle of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took five bottles of it. Never expected to be any better when I commenced taking it, but thank God, I can say that I am glad it reached my home. I had falling of the womb, and flowing caused by miscarriage, and was very weak when I commenced taking your medicine. I was cured by taking five bottles in all—two of the 'Favorite Prescription' and three of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY CONFERENCE.

The opinion prevails at Washington among public men who have been giving attention to the subject that there will be no International Monetary Conference this year and that it will be postponed indefinitely. Chancellor Hohenlohe of Germany is opposed to the silver movement. The most that he ever promised those who have been pressing the German Government to take the initiative in calling a conference was that he would consider the question in connection with the several States of the Empire. Those States or a majority of them have declined against the conference, and the opinion is that unless the bimetalists succeed in arousing Emperor William to take a direct interest in the matter there will be no prospects of securing international action through a conference called by Germany. The English Government is opposed to any change from the single gold standard and some of the German bimetalists think it inadvisable to take any steps toward calling a conference unless the English Government gives some indication of being favorable to a change.

These international monetary conference seem to be designed by the gold men to ride over Presidential elections in the United States. Four years ago a conference was called, and the "party before prosperity" men emphatically declared that the silver agitation was useless, as the place of silver as a money metal would be determined by international agreement. The silver men were not misled by such assertions, and the agitation was kept up until it has given the old parties the ague.

This international monetary conference business no longer deserves any intelligent person. England, the great money center of the world, is getting wheat, corn and cotton cheaper than if silver was remonetized. It has hundreds of millions invested in the bonds of this and other countries, and it gets its interest in gold. A dollar will buy more wheat and cotton than before the adoption of the gold standard, and the British money lender is contented. No one believes that he wants a change so long as he is doing so well, and if you unmask the politician who pretends to believe that the United States should await the action of John Bull on the silver question you will find under his disguise a full-fledged goldbug.

THE SILVER QUESTION IN KENTUCKY.

An election for State officers and members of the Legislature will be held in Kentucky next November. The Legislature will elect a Senator to succeed Joe Blackburn, whose term will expire one year from the 4th of March next. Senator Blackburn, who is a strong advocate of free silver, is a candidate for re-election. The Republicans of his State in convention assembled declared for the single gold standard and with the assistance of the Administration, hope to defeat not only Blackburn, but the whole State ticket if the Convention declares for free coinage.

The Democratic State Convention of Kentucky meets one week from today. If the platform contains a free silver plank, Senator Blackburn will make the fight against the Administration, but if it declares for the single gold standard he will be out of the fight. Hardin is the candidate of the free coinage men for Governor, and Clay represents the goldmen for the same office.

The Administration forces claim that they will control the State Convention and that the platform will not declare for free coinage. Blackburn's friends on the other hand say that a large majority of the Democrats of the State are for free coinage and the free silver men will dominate the convention.

As the silver question is the paramount issue and the Republicans of Kentucky have taken the Cleveland side of the question the Administration will doubtless support the Republican ticket if the silver men control the State Convention. Secretary Carlisle has made two speeches in the State against silver and was reported as saying that there was no place for him outside of the Republican camp if the Democrats declare for free coinage.

THE BALTIC AND NORTH SEA CANAL.

The ship canal across Schleswig-Holstein to connect the Baltic with the North sea is completed, and the event will be celebrated next Friday by a grand naval display at Kiel, the principal seaport of Germany. The harbor of Kiel is on the Baltic. It formerly belonged to the Hanseatic league, but an insurrection in 1848 in favor of the independence of Schleswig-Holstein resulted in the establishment of a provisional government at Kiel. By the convention of Gastein in 1865 Kiel was to be held by Prussia as a German federal harbor, and it is now the most important in the whole empire, and the completion of the ship canal will increase its importance as a seaport.

Twenty-two German warships, and English, French, Russian and Italian squadrons will participate in the celebration. The United States, the only nation from this side of the Atlantic, will also have a squadron in the harbor, and it is said that at least 16,000 sailors will be in the port. A contract has been made with a Hamburg firm to supply the crews with fourteen tons of fresh meat daily, besides 2,000 bottles of wine, 200 bottles of spirits, and about 10,000 gallons of beer.

The opening of the canal will promote commerce between western and southern Europe and ports on the Baltic, as vessels can avoid the dangerous whirlpools and rocks on the coast of Denmark, and the maelstrom, which was pictured in old geographies as engulfing ships on the Norway coast; will have no terrors for mariners.

The Carson Tribune, which seems to speak authoritatively on the subject, says if the Government will offer a reward of $5,000 or $10,000 for the Mint robbers "the whole matter will come to light." The Tribune is horrified, however, at the idea of placing those who are accused of doing the stealing, while they were employed at the Mint, under $25,000 bonds until they appear for trial. As the Tribune seems to be retained by the defendants in the Mint case it probably thinks it incumbent upon it to say something for its clients.

HARLEM SHIP CANAL.

It is Formally Opened With a Grand Display.

New York, June 17.—The Harlem ship canal, which connects the Hudson river with Long Island Sound, was formally opened this afternoon with a monster aquatic and land parade, in which the United States Army and Navy, the State militia and Naval Reserve, the city police and fire department and numerous civic bodies were represented. The parade was watched by 50,000 or more people, stationed along the line of march and on the banks of a canal. The ceremony of pouring two barrels of water from the great lakes into the canal, symbolizing the union of the lakes with the sound, was accompanied by the firing of cannon by the United States cruisers Atlantic and Cincinnati. Among the visitors were Governor Coffin of Connecticut and Governor Wertz of New Jersey.

A DISTILLERY WAR.

Deputy Marshals and an Attacking Party Exchange Shots.

Chicago, June 17.—The anticipated attack on the Shufeldt distillery, one of the plants of the whisky trust, occurred at 1 o'clock this morning, when a dozen armed men attempted to take possession. The attacking party was met by Deputy Marshals placed on guard by Receiver McNulty, and after a harmless exchange of twenty-five or thirty shots the men retreated. Trouble has been expected since the recent decision of the Illinois Supreme Court declaring the whisky trust illegal. Deputy Marshals at the plant were doubled to-day in anticipation of further trouble. The authorities refuse to state who is responsible for the attack. The Shufeldt distillery was sold to the whisky trust by the wealthy Lynch family. Thomas Lynch, Jr., has been reported to have declared his intention of regaining possession of the distillery.

Tornado in Iowa.

DEWENSON, Iowa, June 17.—About 3 o'clock this morning Dewenson and vicinity were visited by a tornado which did damage estimated at $15,000. A one frame country school house was blown away, the farm house of John Rose was demolished, his wife killed and other members of the family severely injured, barns and windmills were demolished, and more than one hundred trees were destroyed.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

UNION CITY, Tenn., June 17.—The boilers at the water works plant exploded this afternoon. The engineer, Carman, was killed instantly, and it is thought others were badly hurt. The cause was the letting of cold water into the boilers. The city is now without water and light.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Superior Judge Murphy this morning dismissed the writ of habeas corpus to secure the release of O W Winthrop, charged with the murder of Mrs. Jennie Mathews. Winthrop, who thought the evidence insufficient to hold him, must now stand trial.

LONDON, June 17.—Application was made to-day for the release of Oscar Wilde pending steps for a new trial. It was refused.

KEELEY'S SECRET OUT.

Dr. D. E. Wills Reveals the Formula. A dispatch from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania says:

"The mystery of the Keeley treatment is solved at last. The secret formula of the b-chloride of gold cure is now given to the world for the first time. A number of times medical and other journals published what was believed to be the formula of the famous treatment. They shot wide of the mark and Keeley continued to baffle the medical profession. The revelation is a direct result of the murder of his wife by Daniel Werling. Dr. D. E. Wills, proprietor of the Oakland private hospital, who twice gave the treatment to Werling, tells what it is, for the benefit of the Pardon Board, which has been appealed to save Werling from death on the scaffold.

Twice Governor Hastings, who has taken a deep interest in the affair, has granted respite to Werling to allow his attorney, Charles A. O'Brien, an opportunity to present testimony to the Pardon Board in relation to the Keeley cure. Werling had taken the gold treatment twice, and it was claimed it had made him insane, that he was insane when he killed his wife, and that he was therefore not guilty of first-degree murder.

Attorney O'Brien yesterday afternoon commenced taking the testimony that is to be presented to the Pardon Board next week. The evidence was given before a notary public. The treatment as stated by Dr. Wills, consists of an internal remedy composed of simple tonics and a system of hypodermic treatment. In the latter four solutions are used. Three of these are put up by the physicians in the various institutes. These are composed of pilocarpine and morphia.

NO GOLD IN IT.

The fourth solution is the one that has been guarded so carefully and has been known as bichloride of gold. There is no gold in it, he says. The drug is lysoeyamine. It is from the plant hyoscyamus, or henbane as it is called. The treatment, Dr. Wills testifies, produces languor, stupidity, and at times, loss of memory and a dazed condition. One of its important effects is increased blood pressure. This, the testimony shows, is particularly dangerous when persons have fatty degeneration of the heart, and under certain conditions of the blood vessels and circulatory system.

Dr. Wills testimony is to be followed by that of many other physicians to show the effect of the various drugs on persons of different mental and physical conditions. Pilocarpine, it is stated, is a drug that must be handled carefully. It is a strong relaxant, and heart failure and instant death may be caused by it.

DRUGS THAT CAUSE INSANITY.

When informed by a reporter, of Dr. Wills' statements, Superintendent Parker of the Keeley Institute on Fifth Avenue, promptly discredited them. Mr. Parker and Dr. Page, the resident physician of the Institute, both took occasion to denounce Mr. Wills. Mr. Parker declared that only three persons on earth were in the secret of the Keeley cure. They were Leslie Keeley and his two partners, John R. Oughten and C. J. Judd. Among the opinions forwarded to Attorney O'Brien, says the Examiner, was the following letter from a physician located in San Francisco:

Since taking charge of the Home for Inebriates, two years and four months ago, I have had over 100 cases of alcoholic subjects in my charge who had relapsed into alcoholism after taking the Keeley and other so-called cures. Of these sixty-two were inmates of this institute. Fully nine-tenths of the number were insane, and now are in the insane asylum. Their insanity was always in the form of intermittent mania due to chronic cerebral congestion, brought on by the atropine or hyoscyamine, which is an ingredient of the so-called gold cure.

DRUGS THAT CAUSE INSANITY.

This deadly poison atropine was, with strychnine, the basis of the original Keeley injection, but lately the manufacturer has replaced the strychnine by brucine, from the same plant, nuxvomica, and the atropine by hyoscyamine, which is practically the same coming from another member of the same family of plants, and also causing acute mania. You can obtain information from the regular inebriate homes in Eastern cities, viz. The Franklin Home of Chicago, the Washington Home of Boston and the home at Fort Hamilton, New York.

I consider as a result of my professional experience that any person who has taken the Keeley hypodermic injections is insane unless strong evidence to the contrary show that he or she has been able to resist the baneful influence of that treatment. Very truly yours, SAMUEL O. L. POTTER, M. D. O. P.

TO LOCATE QUARTZ CLAIMS.

The Requirements After July 1st.

To make a quartz location after July 1st, the prospector must sink a hole at least ten feet deep in solid formation, must have at least one well defined wall, and must stake his ground so that the stakes can be found. The notice of location must be placed conspicuously at the discovery shaft, where it can be seen—not on some stump or tree in the neighborhood. He is allowed ninety days to do this work. If he relocates an old prospect hole, he is required to sink it ten feet deeper than when he first found it, and takes and records it the same as though it was an original discovery. If he runs a tunnel it must be at least ten feet long, so as to determine the fact that a vein supposed to carry the precious metals has been discovered.—The Mining Review.

THE CARSON MINT SHORTAGE.

Preliminary Examination of Wm. J. Pickler, the ex-Deposit Melter, on the Proposition—He is Held to Appear Before the United States Grand Jury—Bonds Fixed at $1,000.

(Correspondence of the Journal)

Carson City, Nev., June 17, 1896.

The preliminary examination of Wm. J. Pickler, ex-Deposit Melter in the Carson Mint, charged with grand larceny in surreptitiously appropriating to his own use and financial benefit certain crude bullion which was under his jurisdiction and manipulation took place to-day before U. S. Commissioner Edwards. It commenced at 10:30 A. M., U. S. District Attorney Jones conducting the prosecution and Alfred Chartz, attorney-at-law, responding in behalf of Defendant Pickler.

The first witness sworn was Flo Stewart, whose sworn affidavit and testimony led to the discovery of some crude bullion, alleged to have been stolen from the Carson Mint upon sundry and divers occasions during the last eight or nine years by the aforesaid W. J. Pickler commencing under Superintendent Gerrard and closing under the present Superintendent Adams.

Miss Stewart, who has lived with Pickler for several years, and after the domestic row leading to this legal trouble has again resumed domestic relations with him, testified this day that she was totally oblivious of the whole matter in question. Said she does not remember anything about an affidavit, swearing out a warrant and all that sort of thing, getting him into all this disagreeable trouble. Says she was drunk, mad and crazy, and all brought about by the dispute between them relative to the little boy they had adopted, which Pickler tried to deprive her of. She knew where the bullion was hidden and that it belonged to Pickler and nobody else. It had been hidden for months. Some of it was in big and some in small pieces and some of it looked like old tin. He brought it all at one time in a sack, telling her he was going to Walley's Hot Springs for his rheumatism and would put it out in the shed or barn, covered up for safe keeping. He said it was from his brother in Idaho. Don't know anything about his having brought it home piece by piece from the Mint in his pocket.

Was drinking very heavily at the time and was mad and crazy over our quarrel and the beating he gave me. When they were searching for the bullion and afterward I didn't like to meet him as I heard he was also drinking and had a gun, so I was afraid of him. Don't remember signing any affidavit or document, and have been sick abed ever since the trouble. Pickler told me at the time to go home and brace up, get straightened out and when the time came to tell the whole truth and no more. Stayed at home with our little boy, and my liberty has not been restricted in the least.

Trenmor Coffin, attorney-at-law, testified that she had come to him saying she wanted to give a "straight tip" in the matter. Pickler had abused her and called her a thief and she would show who was the real thief. He had brought home pieces of bullion from the Mint in his pocket almost daily. Some of it he put on the upper shelf of a closet, where he also had a bottle of granulations concealed and had a deposit of it concealed in the stable.

She described where the bullion could be found, and wanted him arrested forthwith. She was very earnest and straightforward in her assertions and after reading the affidavit, signed it, being apparently as sober, self-possessed and intelligent as she is to-day.

Provided with the search warrant I was with the officers at Pickler's house, Mr. Pickler being present. He jocularly remarked that we were welcome to all the bullion we could find and that this accusation was the last resort of a woman's vengeance. When we discovered the bullion in the stable we put it into a box and scraped around for more, but he told us we need not search further as this was a lot sent to him from his brother in Idaho, and he had it here six months ago for safe keeping. There was no more of it. He intended to dispose of it at the Mint, but was laid up with rheumatism for some time and after the Mint shortage trouble set in he thought best to do nothing about it for the present.

Her statements and the result in this matter was a great surprise to me, as I had been looking for something else in the bullion stealing line for some days and didn't expect it from this source. I am not expert enough to decide whether this is gold or silver bullion, but think if it is stolen from the mint it is as lost to depositors and not to the Government. I was not hunting Pickler, but larger game, being on trail of granulations and gold and silver bars and think there is some surreptitiously stowed away in this State that has not been publicly disposed of.

Noteworthily Clerk of the Mint, testified relative to value of Mint deposit, how received, manipulated and disposed of. There has been no cause to suspect Pickler of wrong doing. This did not look like Mint bullion.

A attorney Woodburn testified to the woman's straightforward manner of getting after Pickler in the matter of affidavits, testimony, etc., totally at variance with her present talk and actions.

Police Judge Hawthorne, U. S. Secret Service Agent Grant and Melter and Refiner Harris also testified relative to details of the investigation. Commissioner Edwards finally decided to accept the primary statements and affidavit of the woman Stewart as her only true version in connection

A few county bills were ordered paid, and the Board then met as a Board of Town Councilmen, allowed town bills, and adopted an ordinance regarding the riding of bicycles on sidewalks.

The Board also passed an ordinance prohibiting Indians congregating and playing cards inside of the town limits, and authorizing the officers to drive them out of town at sundown.

Remarkable Gunning.

Dan O'Keefe won the pigeon shooting match at Steamboat Sunday. He made the remarkable score of three birds out of a possible nine. Some of his graceful passes with the shotgun would have made Dr. Carver envious. His spectators sought shelter behind convenient barns and other safe places until Dan had completed his score.

THE REMOVAL OF NAPOLEON'S BODY TO ITS LAST-RESTING PLACE.

Wonderful Preservation Through Nineteen Years - Spectators Moved to Tears - Impressive Ceremonies at the Church of the Invalides.

The grave in the valley of Napoleon, on St. Helena, as the place had come to be called, was surrounded by an iron railing set in a heavy stone curb. Over the grave was a covering of 6 inch stone, which admitted to a vault 11 feet deep, 8 feet long and 4 feet 3 inches broad and was apparently filled with earth, but digging down some seven feet a layer of Roman cement was found. This broken had been a layer of rough brown stone 10 inches thick and fastened together by iron clamps. It took 4 1/2 hours to remove the lid of the interior sarcophagus was exposed, inclosed in a border of Roman cement strongly attached to the walls of the vault. So stoutly had all these various coverings been sealed with cement and bound by iron bands that it took the large party of workers ten hours to reach the coffin.

"The outermost coffin was slightly injured," says an eyewitness. "Then came one of lead, which was in good condition and inclosed two others - one of tin and one of wood. The last coffin was lined inside with white satin, which, having become detached by the effect of time, had fallen upon the body and enveloped it like a winding sheet and had become slightly attached to it.

"It is difficult to describe with what anxiety and emotion those who were present waited for the moment which was to expose to them all that was left of the Emperor Napoleon. Notwithstanding the singular state of preservation of the tomb and coffins, we could scarcely hope to find anything but some mishapen remains of the least perishable part of the costume to evidence the identity of the body. But when Dr. Guillard raised the sheet of satin, an indescribable feeling of surprise and affection was expressed by the spectators, many of whom burst into tears. The features of the face, before their eyes, were perfectly recognized; the hands, extremely beautiful; his well known costume, which had suffered but little, and the fragments of satin lining which covered, as with fine gauze, several parts of the uniform, we might have believed we still saw Napoleon lying on his bed of state."

The climax of the pageant in Paris was the temple of the Invalides. The spacious church was draped in the most magnificent and lavish fashion and adorned with a perfect bewildering of imperial emblems. The light was shut out by hangings of violet velvet; tripods blazing with colored flames, and thousands upon thousands of waxen candles in brilliant candelabra lighted the temple. Under the dome, in the place of the altar, stood the catafalque which was to receive the coffin.

It was 3 o'clock in the afternoon when the archbishop of Paris, preceded by a splendid cross bearer, and followed by 16 incense boys and long rows of white clad priests, left the church to meet the procession. They returned soon. Following them was the Prince de Joinville and a select few from the grand cortege without. In their midst Napoleon's coffin.

The king descended from his throne and advanced to meet the cortege. "Sire," said the Prince de Joinville, "I present to you the body of Napoleon, which, in accordance with your commands, I have brought back to France."

"I receive it in the name of France," replied Louis Philippe.

Such at least is what the "Monitor" affirms was said. The Prince de Joinville gives a different version: "It appears that a little speech which I was to have delivered when I met my father, and also the answer he was to give me, had been drawn up in council, only the authorities had omitted to inform me concerning it. So when I arrived I simply saluted with my sword, and then stood aside. I saw indeed that this silent salute, followed by retreat, had thrown something out, but my father, after a moment's hesitation, improvised some appropriate sentence, and the matter was afterward arranged in the 'Monitor'."

Beside the king stood an officer, bearing a cushion. On it lay the sword of Austerlitz. Marshal Soult handed it to the king, who, turning to Bertrand, said:

"General, I commission you to place the emperor's glorious sword on the bier."

And Bertrand, trembling with emotion, laid the sword reverently on the bier's coffin. The great audience watched the scene in breathless silence. The only sound which broke the stillness was the half stifled sob of the gray haired soldiers of the Invalides, who stood in places of honor near the catafalque.

The king and the procession returned to the palaces, and then followed a majestic funeral mass - Ida M. Tarbell in McClure's Magazine.

The Chief End of Man.

Mr. Cuyler tells the story of a little boy, the son of good Presbyterian parents, who was asked the question in the catechism, "What is the chief end of man?" and answered it:

"Man's chief end is to glorify God and enjoy him forever."

"There are too many men," says Dr. Cuyler, "who act as if that were their chief end." - Ram's Horn.

England was so called because the dominant tribe of Saxons who conquered it were called the "Angles" or "Engles."
